Doing Good and Stewardship are on the Same Side

Christians must glorify Christ by living, thinking and walking a certain way (Romans 12:1-2; Ephesians 3:20-4:1). Jesus came to serve (Matthew 20:28) as he "went about doing good" (Acts 10:38, NKJV).

Yet, so often, we think doing good deeds is optional. Someone else will do it. There are too many scammers. No one is grateful. They're just lazy. Let the government take care of them.

It's largely true that the truly needy aren't the ones seeking assistance. Yet, whatever our reasons or rationalizations, we can't eliminate it from God's word by closing our eyes and hearts (Psalm 119:89). The world is filled with needy people.

God commands us to be good stewards of the blessings of God (Matthew 25:14-30). However, the call to stewardship is a guide to benevolence, not an enemy. While we must be wise and discerning, God calls us to have an open heart, not a closed fist.

As Christians, we must do God's will by helping others (Colossians 3:23; 1 Corinthians 10:24). In fact we will lose our souls if we don't (Matthew 25:31-46).

"And let us not grow weary in doing good" (Galatians 6:9).

Cont'd

As we live for Christ, we must “be a pattern for good works” (Titus 2:7). When we “withhold good from those to whom it is due,” we have disobeyed God (Proverbs 3:27).

“Therefore, as we have opportunity, let us do good to all, especially to those who are of the household of faith” (Galatians 6:10).

What does “all” mean? Does it mean those who look, act and think like us? Does it mean those who survive our checklists or interrogations?

God gave us wisdom and discernment to make proper decisions and we must use them in situations like this. But do we have stricter rules than God?

The command to do good is a separate issue from how it will be taken by the recipient. The giver and the receiver are both responsible before God (Ezekiel 18:19-23).

We must do good to all as we give priority to members of the Lord’s Church. It’s not an either or, but both. Stinginess and stewardship are two different concepts. Let’s find the truly needy and do God’s will.
